

Adverse natal outcomes escalate
with increasing maternal obesity.
Are your patients aware of the risks?

Risking 2 Lives: Obesity in Pregnancy

This seminar investigates the implications of maternal obesity for both mother and baby, including current research on infertility, systemic inflammation, metabolic syndrome, methylation and epigenetics. Experienced naturopath, Teneille Newton will present underlying causes and effective treatment strategies for maternal obesity. Apply these intrinsic concepts into your clinical practice for successful results.

Topics will include:

- The impact of obesity on fertility
- Promoting effective fat loss prior to conception
- The importance of weight management before, during and after pregnancy
- Minimising maternal and foetal risks
- Addressing gestational diabetes, hypertension, inflammation and metabolic syndrome
- Effectively motivate behaviour change with patients

Teneille Newton (Grad Dip HProm, BHSc, ND) is a degree qualified naturopath with extensive knowledge and over 10 years experience in complementary medicine. She is passionate about the management of current epidemics of obesity and diabetes.
